Headmaster's Welcome

Welcome to Truro School. I hope that you find your visit enjoyable and informative and discover all you wish to know about us. Our current pupils are pleased to act as guides or you may wish to wander around at your own pace, directed by the signs.

I trust that you will find a happy and vibrant school where education is valued in all its many and varied facets. If there are concerns or questions that remain unanswered during your visit, please do not hesitate to ask myself or any member of my staff and we will endeavour to help.

I firmly believe that education is a partnership between home and school and welcome the opportunity to meet you and your son or daughter. The School motto, Esse Quam Videri means to be rather than seem to be and I trust you will see us as we really are today, and you are always welcome to return and make an appointment for a further visit.

Andrew Gordon-Brown
Headmaster

What to see and where to go

Across the School Campus you can visit each department where there are lots of things to do, see, make and try out. As you explore the school please chat to staff and pupils - they are here to help you get the most from your morning. The alphabetical list over the next few pages, gives you details of what is on and where to find it.

Headmaster's Presentation

There is a short address from the Headmaster in the Chapel at 10.30am and 11.30am.

Campus Map

On the back of the leaflet is a map of the School Campus to help you find your way around. A number of our pupils are on hand in Reception to act as your Tour Guide if you would prefer to have a guided tour.

Refreshments

Refreshments are available in the Sixth Form Café between 9.30am and 12.30pm.
